Conclusions

At the end of the workshop , participants came to the following conclusions:

- it is necessary to safeguard culture by opening it to the exchange and the sharing with other cultures
- networks are necessary for language promotion thanks to a constructive dialogue with all the aspects belonging to a culture which is different from ours
- networks allow a greater empowerment of native speakers who feel responsible for the promotion of their language through the new channels offered by innovation
- the relation with other cultures should be based on a dialogue and a mutual exchange
